Amal Ridene – Portfolio Content Research

Profile Overview

Amal Ridene is a Tunisian sustainable development professional and youth leader active in climate finance, youth empowerment, and stakeholder engagement. She is currently the Curator of the World Economic Forum's Global Shapers Tunis Hub and a Chevening Scholar pursuing an MSc in Sustainable Development at the University of Sussex (Science Policy Research Unit) [1]. Amal previously worked as an Investor Engagement Officer at AfricInvest (a leading pan-African private equity firm), where she supported fundraising, due diligence, investor relations, communications, events, and climate initiatives [2]. In parallel, she has served as one of Tunisia's Young Climate Change Negotiators, acting as a party delegate at the UN Climate Change Conferences (COP26, COP27, COP28) and leading her country's Climate Finance negotiation team [3]. Amal also holds or has held multiple leadership and advisory roles – for instance, she is a former board member of the World Organization of the Scout Movement (WOSM) and currently chairs the 2024 World Scout Conference [4]. She sits on the boards or advisory panels of initiatives like RIVET, the Arab Youth4COP Initiative, UNICEF's Generation Unlimited (Young People's Action Team), and the Glasgow Financial Alliance for Net Zero (GFANZ) [5]. This rich mix of experiences underpins Amal's multidisciplinary profile across the three domains of climate finance, youth empowerment, and stakeholder engagement.

Climate Finance

Amal Ridene has a strong focus on mobilizing finance to address climate change. Key points related to her work in Climate Finance include:

- Climate Negotiations Leadership: As part of Tunisia's delegation to the UN climate conferences, Amal led the sub-team on Climate Finance negotiations at COP26, COP27, and COP28 [6]. This means she worked on topics like climate funds, adaptation finance, and related policy commitments, ensuring Tunisia's and youth perspectives were represented in global climate finance discussions.

- Climate Champions Finance Fellow: Amal was selected as a Finance Youth Fellow with the UN Climate Change High-Level Champions Team for 2024 [7]. In this role, she works with a cohort of young professionals to help mobilize climate action among non-State actors in line with the Paris Agreement, focusing on the finance track [8] [9]. Her MSc research likewise centers on Blended Finance – innovative ways to combine public and private funding for sustainable development [9].

- Private Sector & Investment: In her tenure at AfricInvest, Amal supported climate-related initiatives within a major African investment firm [2]. She was involved in raising capital and conducting due diligence for funds, while also integrating climate considerations into investments and engaging investors on sustainability [2]. This experience gave her practical insight into how financial stakeholders can drive climate solutions.

- Global Finance Alliances: Amal serves as an advisory panel member for GFANZ, the Glasgow Financial Alliance for Net Zero [10]. GFANZ is an international coalition of financial institutions committed to aligning their portfolios with net-zero emissions by 2050. Her involvement implies contributing youth and emerging market perspectives to high-level discussions on redirecting capital toward climate action.

- Speaker on Climate Finance: Amal has shared her expertise at international forums. For example, she was a Young Keynote Speaker at the Berlin Energy Transition Dialogue 2024, where she represented youth climate negotiators and highlighted the importance of financing climate solutions [11]. She also spoke at MENA Climate Week 2022 and the UN Global Platform for Disaster Risk Reduction 2022, underlining how finance and resilience must go hand-in-hand [12]. Through these engagements, she advocates for increased funding for climate adaptation, youth-led projects, and inclusive sustainable development.

Overall, Amal Ridene's contributions in climate finance bridge policy and practice – from negotiating international climate finance agreements, to researching innovative funding models, to engaging investors and global alliances to fund climate action [13] [14]. Her goal is to ensure financial flows support a just and sustainable future, especially for vulnerable communities and youth.

Youth Empowerment

Empowering young people and elevating youth voices is a central theme of Amal's work. Here are the highlights of her contributions in Youth Empowerment:

- Global Shapers Community: Amal is the Curator (lead) of the Global Shapers Tunis Hub, an initiative of the World Economic Forum that brings together young leaders to drive positive change in their communities [1]. In this role, she coordinates projects and events in Tunis led by youth, focusing on social impact, climate action, and civic engagement. Her leadership helps other young people in Tunisia develop skills and implement community initiatives.

- Youth Climate Advocate: As one of the Tunisian Young Climate Change Negotiators, Amal represents and empowers youth in global climate policy [15]. She has been part of an official youth delegation that participates in UN climate negotiations, demonstrating how young people can take on formal roles usually held by more senior policymakers. This experience not only amplifies youth voices in high-level decision-making but also inspires other young Tunisians to engage in climate advocacy. She often shares her journey to motivate youth – for instance, speaking at events and in interviews about how young people can influence climate outcomes [16].

- World Scouting Leadership: Amal's background in the Scout Movement exemplifies youth leadership on a global scale. She is a former board member of the World Organization of the Scout Movement (WOSM) and currently the Chairperson of the 2024 World Scout Conference [4]. In these capacities, she works to empower millions of Scout youth worldwide. Co-leading WOSM's "World Events" workstream, she helps plan major international youth events [17]. By leading the World Scout Conference (the highest gathering of Scouting delegates globally), Amal ensures that young people have a say in shaping the strategy and vision of the Scouting movement. This role underscores her expertise in organizing youth-focused platforms and nurturing global citizenship.

- Youth Networks in Climate: Amal serves on the board of the Arab Youth4COP Initiative, a regional network to engage and prepare Arab youth for COP conferences and climate action. Through this, she mentors and collaborates with youth from across the MENA region to raise their capacity and influence in climate policy [10]. Additionally, she is a member of UNICEF's Generation Unlimited Youth Advisory (Young People's Action Team), where she contributes to strategies that unlock opportunities for young people in education, entrepreneurship, and climate action [10]. These roles allow her to channel youth perspectives into the programs of large institutions and ensure initiatives are co-created with young leaders.

- Advocacy & Inspiration: Amal frequently speaks on youth empowerment in international fora. For example, at the RewirEd Summit 2023 (a global education summit held during COP28's Youth & Education Day), she joined a high-level panel to discuss "Accelerating Climate Action: The Transformative Power of Rewired Education." [18] There, and in similar events, she highlighted how educating and including youth in climate solutions is crucial for systemic change. Amal emphasizes that young people are not just beneficiaries but key stakeholders and innovators in tackling global challenges. Her advice to youth often centers on confidence, staying true to one's passion, and actively seeking roles in decision-making processes [19].

In summary, Amal Ridene's work in youth empowerment spans local to global levels – from leading community youth initiatives in Tunis, to guiding worldwide youth movements, to bringing youth voices to the United Nations. She exemplifies how investing in young people's skills, leadership, and networks can create a powerful ripple effect for sustainable development [20].

Stakeholder Engagement

Stakeholder engagement is a thread running through Amal's various roles, as she consistently works to bring different groups together toward common goals. Notable aspects of her experience in Stakeholder Engagement include:

- Investor & Donor Relations: In the private sector, Amal's role at AfricInvest was fundamentally about stakeholder engagement – specifically, managing relationships with investors and funders. As an Investor Engagement Officer, she interfaced with international investors, institutional partners, and clients of the firm [2]. She handled communications, organized investor meetings/events, and guided due diligence visits, thereby building trust and alignment between the firm and its stakeholders. Crucially, she wove climate and sustainability considerations into these conversations, helping investors understand the impact of their funds [21]. This experience honed her ability to align interests across stakeholders (investors seeking returns and communities needing climate-resilient investment).

- Inclusive Climate Dialogue: Amal is a firm believer in multi-stakeholder collaboration for climate action. During a World Bank "Financing Climate Action" event, she stressed that "it is important that all the parties get to join the conversation" on climate solutions [22]. As a youth climate negotiator, she often acted as a bridge between policy-makers, civil society, and youth. For instance, at COP28 she helped launch UNICEF & GenU's Green Rising initiative on a stage that included government ministers, UN officials, business leaders, and youth representatives [23]. Her presence in such high-level panels (see image above from the RewirEd Summit) demonstrates her talent for engaging with diverse stakeholders — from UNICEF's Deputy Executive Director, to the CEO of WOSM (World Scouting), to corporate sustainability heads — all in the same dialogue [23]. By bringing her perspective to these forums, Amal ensures that agendas are shaped with input from all relevant groups, including young people and grassroots voices.

- Boards and Advisory Panels: Amal's participation on various boards/advisory groups further exemplifies stakeholder engagement. On the RIVET board and the Generation Unlimited youth panel, she works alongside experts, industry leaders, and community representatives to guide program strategies [10]. These roles require balancing viewpoints and forging consensus. Similarly, as a Global Shaper and Scout leader, she often liaises with governments, NGOs, and sponsors to coordinate projects or large events. In her scouting "World Events" role, for example, she collaborates with host country authorities, sponsors, and youth delegates from over 170 countries to execute world-scale youth events [5]. This involves cultural diplomacy, negotiation, and clear communication to ensure every stakeholder — whether a young participant or a national Scout organization or a partner institution — feels heard and invested in the outcome.

- Communication & Collaboration Skills: Across all these engagements, Amal has developed strong communication skills tailored to different audiences. Whether writing policy briefs for negotiators, running workshops for youth volunteers, or moderating discussions between experts and newcomers, she adapts her approach to engage each stakeholder group effectively. Her "superpowers" have been described as community building, motivation, and climate negotiations [15], which speaks to her ability to rally people around a common cause and navigate complex, multi-party settings. By fostering partnerships (as reflected in SDG #17 "Partnerships for the Goals," one of the UN SDGs she aligns with [24]), Amal plays a key role in breaking silos. She demonstrates that achieving climate and development goals requires inclusive coalitions – youth with elders, private sector with public sector, local voices with global institutions.

In essence, stakeholder engagement for Amal Ridene means ensuring everyone has a seat at the table and facilitating collaboration between groups that might not typically interact. Her career to date shows a pattern of connecting the dots between investors, policymakers, international organizations, and young changemakers to drive impact [22] [23].

Notable Speaking Engagements & Media Features

To enrich Amal Ridene's portfolio, a selection of notable events, speeches, and media features can be highlighted, often accompanied by pictures or links to articles:

- Berlin Energy Transition Dialogue 2024 (BETD) – Amal was invited as a Young Keynote Speaker at this high-profile conference on the global energy transition [11]. She spoke about youth perspectives in climate policy and finance, sharing the stage with international energy experts and ministers. A photo from BETD.24 or an excerpt can illustrate her role as a thought leader in the climate space.

- MENA Climate Week 2022 – As a youth climate delegate, Amal participated as a speaker during the Middle East and North Africa Climate Week (in Dubai, 2022) [12]. She contributed to a youth-focused session (the "Youth Circle" on the Road to COP27 and COP28), discussing regional climate challenges and the importance of youth engagement. This appearance underscores her regional impact; an article or social media post from that event could be included.

- UN Global Platform for Disaster Risk Reduction 2022 – Amal also spoke at the GPDRR 2022, a United Nations forum on reducing disaster risks [12]. Here she likely highlighted the links between climate change, financing resilience, and youth/community action in disaster preparedness. Including a snippet from UNDRR news or a photo of her on a panel at this event would show her involvement in global resilience discussions.

- RewirEd Summit 2023 (COP28 Youth Day) – At this global education summit in Dubai, Amal joined a panel to launch the "Green Rising" initiative – a partnership to empower millions of youth in climate action through education and jobs [25] [26]. She sat alongside leaders like UNICEF's Deputy Executive Director, the CEO of World Scouting, and private sector partners, bringing youth insights to the conversation [23]. Photos from the RewirEd Summit (such as Amal on stage with fellow panelists) can showcase her active engagement with multi-sector leaders in a visually compelling way.

- World Bank "Expert Corner" Interview (2023) – Amal featured in a World Bank Expert Corner video interview with Dr. Stéphane Hallegatte (Senior Climate Advisor at the World Bank) [27]. In this segment, she posed questions and discussed climate finance challenges from a youth perspective, directly interacting with a leading economist. Highlighting this video or quoting her question ("How can we ensure all parties…join the conversation?") [22] would demonstrate her ability to engage experts and hold her own in technical discussions.

- Media Profiles and Honors: Amal's work has been recognized on platforms like the World Economic Forum website (an official profile outlining her accomplishments [28] [29]) and by initiatives like the UN Climate Champions (who named her in their Youth Fellows announcement [7]). She was selected as a Chevening Scholar – a prestigious UK government scholarship – which itself was noted by networks like the British Embassy or Chevening social media (where she advised applicants to "be yourself, stay confident, and showcase your passion" [19]). Including logos or links (WEF, Chevening, Climate Champions, etc.) can lend credibility and show that she is internationally recognized for her work.

Each of these items can be included in a "Pictures & Articles" section of the website. Accompanying captions should provide context – for example: "Amal Ridene delivering a keynote at BETD 2024 in Berlin, highlighting youth-led climate finance solutions [6]." or "Panel at RewirEd Summit 2023: Amal (second from left) joins UNICEF, World Scouting, and corporate leaders to launch the Green Rising youth climate action initiative [23]." By showcasing these engagements, the portfolio will illustrate Amal's active involvement and visibility in her fields, while also providing visitors with external links or references to learn more about her impact.

Contact and Social Links

For the Contact Me section of the portfolio, it's important to provide easy ways for visitors or potential collaborators to reach Amal Ridene or follow her work. Amal maintains a Linktree page that consolidates her social media profiles [30]. According to her Linktree, she welcomes people to "feel free to reach out!" [31]. Key contact avenues include:

- LinkedIn: Amal's LinkedIn profile (linkedin.com/in/amal-ridene) is a primary professional contact point. Through LinkedIn, one can view her detailed resume, endorsements, and send direct messages or connection requests for professional inquiries.

- Email: (If Amal has a public email, it can be listed here. For example, if she uses a professional email for outreach, it should be provided on the site. Otherwise, LinkedIn and other messaging platforms can suffice.)

- Social Media: She is active on platforms such as Instagram, Facebook, and Twitter (X) – all linked via her Linktree [32]. These channels often showcase her latest activities, travel and event updates, and advocacy messages. For instance, on Instagram she shares highlights from conferences and youth events, helping followers stay updated on her journey. On Twitter, she may engage in discussions on climate policy and youth issues. Providing icons or links to these profiles will allow visitors to connect with her on the medium they prefer.

- Linktree: A direct link to Linktree (amalridene) can be included for convenience, as it is a single page that always contains her current contact links and any featured projects.

In the contact section text, a friendly note in Amal's voice could be added, such as: "Feel free to get in touch or follow me on social media. I'm always happy to connect with fellow changemakers, collaborators, and those who share a passion for climate action and youth empowerment." This invites engagement and makes the portfolio feel approachable.

By incorporating the above information, Amal Ridene's portfolio website will comprehensively cover her background and highlight her work in Climate Finance, Youth Empowerment, and Stakeholder Engagement. Each page (Home, About, Portfolio/Articles, Contact) can draw from these researched details to present a clear, inspiring picture of who Amal is and the impact she is making in these domains. The content is supported by credible sources and real examples [33] [34] [23], ensuring accuracy and providing visitors with paths to learn more.
